Financial Matters

When a couple decide to separate or divorce, all questions surrounding their finances need to be resolved. We have substantial experience in financial claims upon divorce which enables us to handle both complex and high net worth cases together with those of more moderate means. We always strongly encourage people to discuss matters with their ex-partner, either directly or through mediation, with us providing advice and support each step of the way prior to any agreement being reached. Court proceedings can be both lengthy and costly, and it is always far better to reach an agreement if at all possible. We will do our best to help you achieve this, providing you with the honest and accurate advice you need in order to make an informed choice. Assuming it is possible to reach an agreement we will draft a financial order, which can be sent to the Court for approval by a Judge in order to ensure the agreement is binding. However, there are some situations where going to Court is an unavoidable last resort, and should that be the case, we will work hard on your behalf to protect your interests. Our initial cost to prepare an agreed financial order is £500 plus VAT but if the matter becomes protracted this is subject to change.
